Another Invasion of the Slave States Threatened-Redpath in an Anti-Slavery Rage. The notorious James Redpath, in a recent livered himself of the following:

To those of you who are friends of the slave-driver I have nothing to say—my duty is with men whose hearts are too large to be suffocated by the dust raised by party mountebanks, and whose gaze is too steady to be dazzled by the glare of the false and fital splendor of the Despot's Court. To those of you who are ready to imitate Steeens, this only need be said: "Be prepared; bide your time, ere long you will be called." For I tell you, men of Ashtabula, that the etrangling of John Brown was not the death of his cause; and that, ere many more moons revolve, the slave will be offered succor again. Six months before the blow at Harper's Ferry I stated that it would be made, and even indicated by whom; and again, I gave the slave-driver a solemn warning to set his house in order, for his doom is pronounced—"he shall die and not live." INCREASE OF OYSTERS IN CHESKPEAKE BAY. The leading men in the cyster business in Baltimore assert that there are more cysters in Chesepeake Bay at present than there were twenty years ago, notwithstanding millions upon millions of bushels have been removed. They say that dredging for cysters in deep water scatters the bedover a greater extent, and is the only way by which the quantity in the long term can be increased. Taking up cysters with the tongs is more economical, in that it destroys fewer cysters, but it does not spread the supply, and ultimately exhausts the stock.

THE NEW ORLEANS POISONING AFFAIR .-Of the nineteen persons poisoned in the family of Col. T. L. Lemley, of New Orleans, with arsenic, by a slave woman and her son, only two have an yet died; four others remaining in great danger. Two or three more slaves have been arrested on suspicion of complicity in the plot to destroy the family.

Miss Jones was taken ill on the 1st of February, and on the 5th wrote to her father informing him of the fact, but the letter was never sent. Subsequently becoming more seriously ill she wrote again, asking her father and mother to come and see her. This letter the Principal of the Awademy induced the person charged with carrying it to the Postoffice, to burn. No medical attendance was provided for the poor child, dying among strangers and longing for the father and mother of whom she was the only daughter. The wife of the Principal treated her homosopathically with aconite, mercury and bryony. She was speechless when her father arrived, and could not of course relate how much she had suffered, or why her parents had been kept in ignorance of her condition.

Larcomb & English bid eighty-six per cent, less than the present rates. Fifteen others bid each more present rates. Fifteen others bid each more than fifty per cent. less than the work has been done for. This developes the amount of plunder that has for years existed in the executive department of the public printing. As the Postoffice blanks printing has cost forty-live thousand dollars per annum heretofore, under the new law there will be a saving of about forty-one thousand dollars.

A TREOLOGICAL STUDENT GUILTY OF FOR GERY.—Some months ago, says the New York Tribune, a young student at the Princeton Theological Seminary, by the name of Jamieon, conducted him the censure of the officers of that institution, and was obliged to leave. Letters of recommendation to other seminaries were denied him. Therefore he forged the signature of Dr. McGill, of Princeton, to a bogus letter, which he presented to the Union Theological Seminary in this city, and was admitted. A few weeks since the faculty of the latter institution heard some charges affecting his character, and, on writing to Princeton, discovered that he was an imposter, and that his letter was forged, and he was expelled forthwith. the censure of the officers of that institution, FEARFUL MEETING BETWEEN A BROTHER AND PEARFUL MRETING BETWEEN A BROTHER AND SISTER.—Quite a sensation was created on Broadway, New York, a few evenings since, by a meeting between a brother and sister. The sister had been seduced, abandoned, and forced to a life of shame. In walking the streets she met her brother, who, with their father, was in quest of her. She fell sobbing in his arms, and was taken care of at once. She belongs to Little Falls, N. Y., and it was with a city bank clerk that she departed from the path of rectitude.

York Independent, gives some new and interesting facts in regard to the tragedy:

"Of one of these prisoners, Hanlett, but little has been made known to the publicanot even his true name, which was not Hazlett but Harrison. He was one of the youngest of Capt, Brown's companions, and remarked, while in prison, that on the day of his execution, March 1e, his age would be exactly twenty-two years twenty-two weeks and twenty-two days. He had a serious and thoughful mind, yet was fond of adventure, and often exhibited much personal courage. Of his views and purposes agains: slavery, he wrote in a letter, on the day befare his death, these honorable words:

"I am willing to die in the cause of liberty. If I had ten thousand lives, I would willingly lay them all down for the same cause. My death will do more good than if I had lived."

"Aaron Dwight Stevens was a more remarkable man. He was regarded by Capt. Brown as his most reliable lieutenant. He seems to have inherited his revolutionary principles from his great-grandfather, who once presided at a public meeting in Pomfret, Ct., in furtherance of the American War of Independence, and who sent a personal gift of £20 sterling to Gen. Washington at Valley Forge.

"Stevens was born and bred a Yanker boy,

Forge.
"Stevens was born and bred a Vanker boy,
"Stevens was born and bred a Vanker boy,

Stevens was born and bred a Yankee boy, in Norwich, Connecticut, lost his mother, and left home at an early age. On the day before his execution he reached his twenty-ninth year. His personal appearance was in no small degree prepossessing. A recent photograph, taken in his cell, represents a face remarkable for an intelligent, amiable and henevolent expression. He had large blue eyes and auburn hair and beard. He was noted among his friends for the animation, and oftentimes brilliancy of his conversational powers. He was a favorite in social companies as a singer. His father, Mr. Aaron Stevens, of Norwich, (choir leader in the Rev. Mr. Arms's Congregational Church, says of him: "My son has one of the finest bass voices I ever heard." He was of a kind and sympathetic nature, which led him always to take the side of the innocent and wronged. Any special kind act from friend or stranger would move him to tears. Writing from prison to a person who had befriended him during his sufferings he said: "I believe I shall be killed with kindness sooner than in any other way."

STEVENS'S ACCOUNT OF THE HAID. His sister, Mrs. Pierce, of Norwich, visited the prisoner, at Charlestown, and held re-peated interviews with him during the last eight days preceding the execution. "I asked my brother," said Mrs. Pierce, "what was his intention in going to Harper's Ferry?"

"what was his intention in going to Harper's Ferry?"

"It was for good," he replied; "it was to help my fellow-men out of bondage. You know nothing of slavery; I know a great deal.
It is the crime of crimes. I hate it more and more, the longer I live. Even since I have been lying here in this cell, I have heard the cryings of slave children torn from their parents."

He then narrated in detail, that during his imprisonment a woman had been sold in the jail, and separated from her husband and three children. He stated also, that in the family of the jailer was a slave-girl, who had run away from a severe mistress on account of unkind treatment, and who fied for refuge to Mrs. Avis, by whom her time was bought, and by whom she will eventually be set free.

During ona of Mrs. Pierce's visits, a Virginian called to see the prisoners, in order to tell them that the slaves at the South were in a better condition than the poor people of the a better condition than the poor people of the North.

"I am poor myself," replied Stevens, "but I never yet saw the day, in all my life, when I would have exchanged liberty for riches."

On another occasion, his sister asked if he had been roused to a bitter or revengeful spirit, under his wounds and during his imprisonment; to which he replied:
"No; for I believe I can truly say that I love every man, woman and child on earth; I love every man, woman and child on earth; I can forgive the man who hangs me. When we went to Harper's Ferry we had no intention to injure a single human being; our design was to free the slaves without bloodshed, just as we had done in Missouri; we carried rifles and pikes only for self-defense, and to inspire, by the appearance of military force, a fear of resisting us in our project. I think that no man was killed by any of our party until after I was shot down while bearing a flag of truce. Some of the Virginians were killed by their own party, by mistake. As for myself, I did not shed a single drop of blood, except from my own wounds."

Stevens was pierced in different parts of his body, by six bullets, two of which he carried, lodged in his neck, to the grave.

"I am glad," he said, after a reference by his sister to the great pain he had suffered, "I am glad that I did not die of my wounds for I believe that my execution upon the gallows will be a better testimony for the truth and liberty."

A Young Couple Entirely Plundered by the Agency of Chlereform.

The St. Louis Bulletin says that a few nights since a young man, clerk on a steamboat, who had been recently married, returned to since a young man, clerk on a steamboat, who had been recently married, returned to his home, in that city, and on retiring for the night, placed his pocket-book, containing $180, under his pillow. In the night his wife says she awoke and thought she saw the shadowy forms of three men standing over the bed with something in their hands. She was too weak to scream, and soon fell into a state of unconsciousness. In the morning the husband and wife awoke, feeling very sick, and discovered that their clothes—every article, pants, coats, petticoats, &c.—were stolen, besides the $180 which the husband thought he had hid securely under hispillow. Burglars had entered the house in the night, applied chloroform to their victims, and robbed them of all they possessed. The young couple had to lie in bed until some of the neighbors came in to supply them with clothing.

A GEORGIA JAIL BURST DOWN BY A PRISONER.—The jail of Mussogee County, situated near Columbus, Gergia, was recently discovered to be on fire. The flames were seen issuing from the South-west room before the alarm of fire was given, and as the room was occupied by one Pinckard, sentenced to ten years imprisonment in the Penitentiary, for negro-stealing, it is believed that he was the incendiary. The prisoners, numbering fivein all, were immediately carried to the guard house, while the fire companies repaired to the spot, but could not arrest the flames.

PRACTICAL PERSUASION .-- A friend of ours PRACTICAL PERSUASION.—A friend of ours has just returned from the Capitol of a neighboring State, where he succeeded in lobbying a bill, in which he was personally interested, through the Legislature. "Well, did you persuade them to pass your hill?" we asked of him. "Yes," said he, pulling out his pocket-book, "I purse-neaves them."

A Busy Postoffice.—The Galveston (Texas) News of a late date says. Our readers may form some opinion of the amount of labor now required in this postoffice when we inform them that the last three mails from New Orleans brought over three hundred and sixty bushels of mail matter.

The Harper's Ferry Investigating Committee had another meeting yesterday. The Sergeant-at-Arms, who has been in search of John Brown, ir., has returned, and informed the Committee that he is in Ohio, but refused to be taken. He defies the Committee and Congress, and says his friends will not permit him to leave the State. The Committee meets again on Friday, when the matter will probably be reported to the Senste.

The Fugitive-Stave Case.

Philladelipha, March 29.—A bearing was had this morning before Judges Allison and Thompson, upon the writ of habous corpus granted in the fugitive-slave case. The return upon the writ by the United States Marshal was a long statement of the circumstances of the case, concluding with the information that before the service of the said writ the fugitive had been remanded to the custody of his claimant in pursuance of an order of the United States Court, and, therefore, that the respondent could not produce the body as ordered.

After argument by George N. Wharton for the respondent, and Mr. Earl for the applicant for the writ, Judge Allison stated that the first question to be considered by the Court was, whether the writ had been properly granted, as the statements in the return disclosed facts which were not known when the writ was applied for and issued.

The application only stated that the man was restrained of his liberty by Jacob S. Yost. It now appears that when the writ was granted, the prisoner was not in custody of the Marshal, but actually in the custody of the Circuit Court, a hearing of the case being in progress. As the writ of habeus corpus would not have been granted had these facts been known, he suggested the case should be argued as if an application for a writ. The argument of the case was then postponed until Saturday. The Fugitive-Stave Case.
